"Russian progress in the Carpathians seems to have made the Germans afraid of a wide turning movement," his dispatch adds. "They are preparing to retreat apparently in the fear that the Russinos will cut them off from their

The Russian military experts declare that the occupation of Bukowina will hasten the complete victory of the Czar's troops, pointing out that the Austrian right wing will now be unable to operate under cover of the Carpathian forests.

The German official report records lack of progress on the Poland front for the first time, thus giving substance to the believe here that von Hindenburg, now on the defensive, will shortly begin another withdrawal. Slight advance, however, is claimed at one point, southeast of Sklerniewice.

The German lines west of Warsaw have been lengthened to a 70-mile front to check the forward movement of the Grand Duke Nicholas. At several points along this extended front battle wages between inhalty forces and artillery corps.

The German forces admittedly are east of the Baura and Rawka Rivers, but have no gains toward their objective, Marsaw.

During the advance the Germans clung lasely to the peculiar tactics developed them earlier in the war, particularly in the How-Lowiez campaign, in which hey concentrated 12 army corps on a 20mile front. When this front was lengthmed recently the same number of troops were spread over 70 miles. This is regarded as proof that the Germans have abandoned the offensive. By remaining on the defensive it is estimated that at less five army corps have been released.
These were either put into the second

be inactive, or were withdrawn compictly from the front for reorganization

OFFICIAL WAR REPORTS

FRENCH

In Belgium the enemy made two attacks without success in the region of the dines and to the southeast of St. Georges. On the rest of the front to the morth of the Lys and from the Lys to the Cise there has been only a steady combet. In the valley of the Alane and in the region of Rheims our batteries have gained the advantage ever those of the enemy, which have been reduced to silence. Besides this our troops have advanced 100 yards northwest of Rheims. In the Argonne there has been a very vicient fight, which permitted us to take 300 yards of trenches, in the woods of La Gruie, at a point where a slight retirement had previously been announced.

From Bagatelle and from Fontain

From Bagatelle and from Fontain Madame the Germans opened two violent attacks, each with an effective strength of one regiment. They have been repulsed. Near the ravine of Courte Chausse we have blown up with a mine 800 yards of German trenches of which we have occupied half.

From the Argonne to the Vosges the bad weather—fog and sleet—con-tinues. There have been at different points on the front only very sharp artillery duels.

In the forest of Le Pretre, near Pont-a-Mousson, we continue to gain ground.
In the region of Thann, despite a violent cannonade, we have main-tained our gains of the day before, as much at Steinbach as in the trenches to the southwest and to the northwest of that village.

The enemy succeeded in reoccupying one of his old trenches on the eastern slope of hill No. 425, of which the ern slope of fill No. 325, of which the summit remains in our possession.

In the Argonne, near the ravine of Courte Chausse, where we blew up the German trenches, the Italian regiment commanded by Lieutenant Colonel Garibaldi made a vigorous attact the court of th tack through the breach opened by the explosion.

We took 120 prisoners, of whom a dozen were sub-officers, and captured mitrallieuse and a gun carriage.

Adjutant Constantino Garibaldi, a brother of the lieutenant colonel was killed in the course of the attack.

The French again obtained a foothold early yesterday upon the much fought-for heights west of (Cernay) Sennheim. The French were driven off, however, after a strong bayonet attack. They did not dare to make a fresh advance. We took 50 mountain chasseurs. There is no change in the eastern theatre, on the eastern frontier or northern Poland.

Our troops west of the Vistula pene-trated as far as Sucha (probably Su-liszew, southeast of Skierniewice), capturing several of the enemy's points of support. We took 1400 prisoners and nine machine guns.

The situation on the east bank of the Pilica is unchanged.

The enemy's attempts to break through northwest of Gorlice again failed at the cost of heavy Russian losses. The height south of Gorlice, which was flercely contested, was taken and an unusually large hostile battailon was defeated.

A field officer, four subalterns and 80 troops were captured, as well as two machine guns. A hostile aeroplane also was shot down.

The flechette has added a new terror to modern warfare. It is the boast of French aviators that when thrown from a height of 3000 feet it will strike clean through a man from his helmet to his feet. It is somewhat larger than a pencil. It is flanged so that no matter how hurled its point will always strike first. German flyers have now adopted it, and some arrows are said to bear the inscription: "Invented in France and made in Germany."

RUSSIANS REND TURK FORCES IN CAUCASIA:

in Rout Flee Through Mountains.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 6. Broken remnants of the Turkish army that invaded Trans-Caucasia are being pursued today by the Russian forces. The defeat of the Ottoman forces was a rout. The Russians are reported to have taken 50,000 prisoners, besides vast quantities of war munitions and many guns.

The Ninth Turkish Corps was annihilated, it was officially announced today, and the 10th Corps was so badly shat-tered that it was unable to offer any organized resistance. Grand Duke Nicholas has notified the War Office that the Russian victory was complete and paid a tribute to the valor of the Russian troops. The country through which the fleeing Turks are trying to escape will impede their movements and it is said that they will lose thousands of men in the chasms and deep streams that run through the mountains.

The report of operations from Grand Duke Nicholas was:

"The defeat we inflicted upon the Turkish army at Sari-Kamysh is complete. The 9th Turkish army corps was annihilated. We captured the commander of the corps, Iskam Pasha; the commanders of the 17th, 28th and 29th Divisions and two of their lieutenants, with all their staffs, more than 100 officers and a large number of men.

"The losses of the Turks in killed and wounded are enormous. We took many guns, large numbers of ammunition and supply columns.

"The honor of capturing the commander of the Turkish army corps fell to a single company of one of our regiments.

"Our victorious troops are pursuing the remnants of the 9th Corps, which are trying to escape, and are inflicting heavy losses upon the routed enemy, as well as taking numerous prisoners.

The other two invading Turkish colums are not directly affected by the surrender of Sary-Kamish, but it may compel at least one if not both of them to abandon its offensive, and it removes the meace to Kars, which is perhaps the most important strategical position in the whole region. In the last Russo-Turkish war the gallant Ottoman defense of Kars practically held up the whole Russian advance on that side.

DOOM OF PRUSSIAN MILITARY RULE SEEN BY PASTOR WAGNER

Author of "The Simple Life" Declares Germany Will Be Democratized by Defeat in War.

PARIS, Jan. 6. While insisting that, in his opinion, Germany as an Empire is doomed, as is the Hohenzollern regime, the Rev. Charles Wagner, author of "The Simple Life, believes that the war is a blessing in disguise. He believes that out of it there will come a return from the materialistic to the spiritualistic by all mankind. An Alsatian by birth, Pastor Wagner is intensely pro-French, despite the fact that he has always been most cordially welcomed in Germany. Pastor Wagner today gave his views on the war. He said:

"The German people did not want this war any more than France wanted it. They were misled into thinking it necessary by the talk and writings of the Prussians Junkers. They were blinded by all this talk of divine right, a place in the sun, of enemies being on all sides, of shining armor, of Prussian supremacy, right of might and the sacred duty of Germany spreading her 'kulture' over all the earth. The real German has been ulled to sleep by all these things, al-hough his belief in them is purely supering along the single road leading toward its own frontier, about 60 miles away.

The Sarl-Kamysh attack, of course, was aimed at the principal Russian fortress in that region, Kars, but the Turks never got within 39 miles of that stronghold.

"The awakening of the German people is at hand. Of necessity it will be sad, although wholesome. Very soon they will know the truth; that the Empire has led hem away from their true destiny; that it has treated them badly. Their moral courage, which they have not used for some time, now will reassert itself, and the Empire will disappear as will the Kalser, the Crown Prince and the Prussian military aristocracy, whose influence than the Germania was treated to the course of upon the Germanic race has been so bale-

"I foresee for the German Empire just such a fate as the French Empire met in 1870. France today is a far better nation and her people are a greater peo-ple than would have been the case had Napoleon remained. Frenchmen work up under the influence of the new racy. History will now reper German will be democratized; the will no longer permit the Processive of the processive of the processive of the processive of the superman, and the Germans the merely decile barnyard animals.

"Out of this war will come great to the entire world. France will great profit from it, first, because is fighting for a great ideal, the right each individual has to beau prosperity and the pursuit of happens as he sees it, as you Americans second, because no man can constrom this war and do little things from this war and do little things race will be uplifted.

"Civilization will draw a lesson the war and profit by it. Right un respected as right has never become of all wars, but certainly be will not see another for a long its come."
